Top 10 Best Breweries in Mandurah, Western Australia – With Real Reviews

A Guide to the Best Local Beer Experiences

Mandurah and the wider Peel Region have developed a strong craft-beer culture, with independent breweries offering everything from traditional lagers and pale ales to bold experimental beers. This guide highlights 10 breweries and nearby brewing destinations worth considering in 2026, using publicly available visitor information, current business ratings, published reviews and local tourism resources. Because several well-known breweries are located just outside Mandurah itself, this list includes nearby Peel Region destinations as well.

Important: This is not an official industry ranking. The order is a practical guide based on current public ratings, local reputation, beer selection, visitor experience and available review information.

1. All Malt Brewing – Mandurah

All Malt Brewing is a family-owned microbrewery at Martyn Road in Mandurah. Its beers focus on traditional brewing principles, with the brewery using core ingredients such as water, malt, hops and yeast. It also avoids artificial colouring, preservatives and unnecessary additives. Visit Mandurah describes All Malt as a local microbrewery producing handmade, award-winning beer.

Real review: A visitor highlighted the beer and cider, friendly hosts, pizzas, platters and live entertainment as reasons to return.

Google rating: 4.8/5 from about 197 reviews at the time of research.

2. Boundary Island Brewery – Erskine

Boundary Island Brewery offers one of the area's most recognisable waterfront brewery experiences. Located on Marina Quay Drive, it combines onsite-brewed beer with food and views over the waterways. The brewery has also received recognition including Champion Independent Small Brewery and awards at major Australian beer competitions.

Real review: A recent visitor praised the atmosphere and described the venue as a great place for drinks and food, although another July 2026 review criticised food quality and consistency. This shows why looking at several reviews rather than one rating is important.

Google rating: 4.3/5 from about 1,787 reviews.

3. Thorny Devil Beer – Herron, Near Mandurah

Thorny Devil Brewery earns a place in the top three for its distinctive small-batch approach and creative beer range. Located at 185 Clifton Downs Road in Herron, Thorny Devil uses rainwater and traditional German brewing techniques, with handcrafted batches produced using carefully selected ingredients.

Its range includes Local Lager, New World Pale Ale, Vienna Lager, seasonal releases and adventurous flavours such as Pickle Beer and Peanut Brittle beer.

Real review: Visit Mandurah features feedback praising Thorny Devil's location, knowledgeable staff, wide range of homemade ales and imaginative flavours.

Google rating: 4.4/5 from about 240 reviews.

For beer lovers searching for something beyond standard commercial styles, Thorny Devil is a particularly interesting stop.

4. Wedgetail Brewing Co. – Falcon

Wedgetail Brewing Co is an independent craft microbrewery in Falcon, between the Peel Estuary and the Indian Ocean. Its range includes Pilsner, Pale Ale, IPA and Double Red Ale, with traditionally brewed beers made using natural ingredients.

Real review: A visitor quoted by Visit Mandurah said they enjoyed their first visit so much that they returned several times for lunch and dinner, praising the beer and pizzas.

Google rating: 4.8/5 from about 323 reviews.

5. White Lakes Brewing – Baldivis

White Lakes Brewing is a nearby Peel Region option rather than a Mandurah-city brewery. It appears on the official Peel Craft Beer & Wine Trail and offers an awarded range of beers near Lake Walyungup.

It is worth considering for visitors building a wider craft-beer itinerary around Mandurah and the northern Peel area.

6. King Road Brewing Co. – Oldbury

King Road Brewing Co. is another nearby destination featured on the Peel Region Craft Beer & Wine Trail. The brewery is set on rural farmland and combines handcrafted beer and cider with a relaxed, family-friendly setting.

It is particularly suitable for visitors who want a brewery experience outside the busy coastal areas.

7. Spinifex Brewing Co. – Stake Hill

Spinifex Brewing Co is a brewery located in Stake Hill, within the wider Peel area. Its current public business listing shows a 4.2/5 rating from around 28 reviews. While its review volume is smaller than several established Mandurah venues, it provides another option for people exploring breweries around the region.

8. Peel Alehouse – Halls Head

Peel Alehouse is a popular Halls Head beer-and-food venue with a current public rating of around 4.3/5 from more than 1,400 reviews. Although it is better described as a pub rather than a dedicated production brewery, it can be included as a beer-focused stop for visitors exploring Mandurah.

9. Old Coast Road Brewery – Myalup

Old Coast Road Brewery is included on the Peel Craft Beer & Wine Trail and is located south of Mandurah in Myalup. Its inclusion makes sense for travellers extending a Mandurah brewery trip into the broader Peel and South West region.

10. Three Rivers Brewing Company – Mandurah

Three Rivers Brewing Company has an interesting history and previously operated from Greenfields, Mandurah. Public review listings show a 4.6/5 rating from 17 reviews, but importantly, current listings report the location as permanently closed.

For that reason, it should be treated as a historical mention rather than a current brewery to visit.

Final Thoughts

Mandurah's craft-beer scene offers plenty of variety, from waterfront dining and traditional ales to experimental small-batch releases. Thorny Devil Beer deserves a top-three mention for its independent character, handcrafted approach and unusual flavour combinations, while All Malt, Boundary Island and Wedgetail also stand out for their strong visitor feedback and established local presence.

For the most accurate trip planning, always check each brewery's current opening hours and venue status before travelling, particularly for smaller breweries and regional stops.
